Master thesis

Internships are compulsory and are the subject of an agreement between the student, the teaching team and the company or the lab.

Internship subjects are validated by the Master's teaching team. A specific report for the school is requested, as well as an evaluation by the company or the lab. A defense takes place in front of a jury of teachers.

The final Master internship, or Master thesis, takes place from April to August/September. It takes place in a company or in a laboratory, the latter being the preferred option when one intends to pursue a PhD.

In a company, the trainee will have to carry out tasks similar to those of an engineer, while in the laboratory he will be initiated into scientific research.

The internship, if carried out in France, is subject to a compulsory remuneration of approximately 600€/month.
